

The turn

words and music by Bodo Schaffrath

It's the turn of me, it's the turn of you, it's the turn of everything in me.
It's the turn of life, it's the turn of time, it's the turn of everything in me.
It's the turn for tears, it's the turn for love, it's the turn of everything in me, in me, oh
in me!

Sometimes it's just a word, sometime it sounds absurd,
sometimes it's all I've ever heard:
Sometimes it's you, sometimes it's me.
I'm afraid to close my eyes, cause there will be no more skies,
just an empty universe: without you, without me.

It's dark and blue, it's funny and so true, it's more than I can bear.
It's near and far, it depends where you are, sometimes it's lightyears from here.

It's the turn of me, it's the turn of you, it's the turn of everything in me.
It's the turn of life, it's the turn of time, it's the turn of everything in me.
It's the turn for tears, it's the turn for love, it's the turn of everything in me, in me, oh
in me!

It's the turn of me, it's the turn of you, it's the turn of everything in me.
It's the turn of life, it's the turn of time, it's the turn of everything in me.
It's the turn for tears, it's the turn for love, it's the turn of everything in me, in me, oh
in me!